"Cowboy" was a really pretty, palomino stud with that SUNFROST look. We had the misfortune of losing Cowboy last year halfway through the breeding season. His colts are nice to halter break with that trainable mind. His oldest colts for us are four-year-olds and are extremely nice to be around and ride. Cowboy's colts are exceedingly well-minded and trainable, and those who are riding his colts are all very pleased with them. These Cowboy colts will have the mind and performance to take you to any level you want to go. I have several four-year-old fillies that had their first colts this year. Cowboy's colts are doing everything from Mounted Shooting to roping, to barrels. This is the last set of Cowboy colts offered this year and we kept several daughters for the broodmare band.
